

New England College of Optometry

Message from the Dean

For 125 years the New England College of Optometry has provided outstanding professional education. Our students are trained to the top standards in the world and with cutting edge technology both in the clinic and in the classroom. Our faculty is a diverse group of professionals who are highly educated and are individually and collectively solely devoted to optometric education, the highest quality patient care and advancing the frontier of science through our targeted research program.

NECO is located in the national epicenter for health care in which our clinical training network, by its purposeful design, provides the substrate upon which our students gain a culturally competent in-depth exposure to patients and their systemic eye care.

Soon we will be opening our new Clinical Campus comprised of three parts—a new flagship clinic and dispensary, a clinical annex that includes rehabilitative vision services and clinical research, and our state-of-the-art clinical training facility for students. These investments will position New England College of Optometry to continue down the path of our singular focus of providing unsurpassed optometric education.

Robert DiMartino, OD, MS, FAAO
Vice President and Dean of Academic Affairs
New England College of Optometry